The Big Mo

Movies by Moonlight

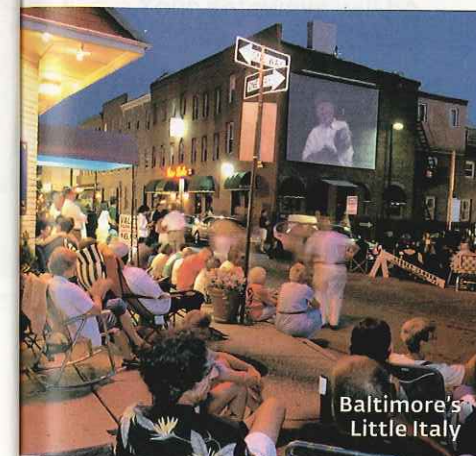

The best seat in the house is the one you bring to these outdoor silver screens.

1 OPEN AIR FILM FESTIVAL, BALTIMORE

Little Italy becomes a cinema alfresco as moviegoers fill an urban lot on Fridays in July and August with lawn chairs and blankets for the free show. The live music starts at 7 at the corner of High and Stiles streets across from Vaccaro's pastry shop (where it's worth the long line to taste pignoli cookies). The movies—all somehow related to Italy—are projected on the side of a brick building beginning at 9 p.m. littleitalymd.com

2 MONTANA DRIVE-IN, ESTILL SPRINGS, TENNESSEE

Choose from first-run flicks on three different screens that show doubleheaders at this drive-in located between Estill Springs and Tullahoma on U.S. 41A, about 40 minutes south of Nashville. You can't bring your own food, but you won't want to. Such offerings as roasted corn, fried pickles, barbecue, chicken, and fried pies make eating and watching delicious fun. Tip: The line for the restroom gets long at intermission. Admission: $6 adults, $5 kids. montanadrivein.com

3 MOVIES AND THE MARKET IN CENTRAL PARK, ATLANTA

Family-friendly flicks cover the big screen in Atlantic Station's greenspace each Thursday night from now through October. Arrive early to enjoy restaurant discounts such as half-priced burgers at Atlantic Grill or fondue for two for $10 at The Grape, from 6-9 p.m. Also check out the open-air Art and Antique Market, where you'll find vendors offering furnishings, jewelry, and homemade treats. atlanticstation.com

4 THE BIG MO, MONETTA, SOUTH CAROLINA

T-shirts here urge you to "Mo-tor on out to the Big Mo," a drive-in on U.S. 1 about 20 minutes from Aiken. Usually open Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays, the two-screen theater also welcomes pets (on leashes). The concession sells typical hot dogs and burgers, as well as boiled peanuts and funnel cakes. Don't let a little iffy weather deter you. The Big Mo shows movies "rain or moon." Admission: $7 adults, $3 kids. thebigmo.com

5 MOVIES BY THE LAKE, CAROLINA BEACH, NORTH CAROLINA

Two blocks off the Atlantic, catch an ocean breeze as you watch free first-run flicks by Carolina Beach Lake. Pull up a blanket along the grassy lakeside, dig into your picnic basket or restaurant carryout (concessions are limited), and enjoy family-style films on Sunday nights. On Thursday nights, move to the Gazebo Stage for free concerts and fireworks. carolinabeachgetaway.com *
